Patagonian Lamb

From the countryside to the city

Frigorífico Hermoso is a company with a long history in the city of Comodoro Rivadavia, Chubut, Patagonia, Argentina. Since its founding it pointed to growth based on the quality of its products, produced in its plant under the supervision of SENASA (National Service for Agri-Food Health and Quality).

Today, Frigorífico Hermoso is consolidated in the production and commercialization of the traditional Patagonian Lamb. Its high quality meat is according to the demands that the current consumer seeks: it is healthier, has a low cholesterol content and is recognized worldwide for its tenderness, mild flavor and special palatability.

The lambs come from Chubut and Santa Cruz, where the Patagonian steppe predominates, with a dry climate with an average annual rainfall of 150 mm. They are raised at the foot of their mother in extensive pastoral systems without the use of herbicides and fertilizers. The forage availability is poor, and the sheep graze freely supplying a balanced diet from different shrubby species to raise their lambs with milk.

These production characteristics showed, in different researches carried out, that lamb meat produced in Patagonia, under these particular natural grazing systems, have very low contents of intramuscular fat with high levels of polyunsaturated fats which is related to low levels of cholesterol.

The Company

The history of the Refrigerator goes back to the year 1947 when Antonio Luis Hermoso began his activity as a butcher to open a slaughterhouse soon after.

In 1968 his son Carlos Alberto joined the company and began the construction of the Refrigerator in the industrial district of the city of Comodoro Rivadavia.

In 1975 the facilities of the establishment were extended incorporating the first freezing tunnel. In 1979 a modification of the slaughterhouse was carried out, in order to comply strictly with the sanitary hygienic norms that Decree 4238/68, Regulation of products inspections, by-products and derivatives of animal origin of SENASA dictated for this purpose.

In 1985 SENASA authorized the plant for the slaughter and federal traffic of sheep and cattle. The qualification was recently obtained to export lamb meat with Halal rite to countries of the Middle East and North Africa.

Data sheet

The box contains one patagonian lamb, 9 kg of the best meat in the world.
